→ Scientists report their research activities and findings in a standard format in science journals. Information given in a research paper should be organized in a manner that it flows in the form of an hour glass i.e. information moves from general to specific and back to general.

1. Title:

- Keep it simple, brief and attractive with use of active verbs instead of noun based complex phrases.
- Avoid abbreviations and jargon.

2. Authors and their affiliations

this includes the name (s) and address (es) of all authors and date of submission. writers should make a list of all the people who worked on the project and contributed enough to be considered as co-authors.

3. Abstract.

this is a concise single paragraph summary of the work enabling the readers to comprehend the underlying principles behind the study, the general methodology used in the study, relevant results and important inferences and new questions.

4. Key words and abbreviations:

Key word is a descriptive used as a reference point for finding other words or information.
